Learning and Web Analytics (Doctoral, online, 1x, 2021)

This course addresses the collection and use of data for decision making and assessment in learning and human performance contexts. Students will get hands-on experience with small data sets and will learn how big data sets are collected and used. The course will explore the role that analytics plays in education and related fields, identify the types of questions that might be answered via both quantitative and qualitative analytics, and engage in analytic- related problem solving. This course will examine case studies and provide students with practice using a variety of tools and services that can help them collect and analyze learning and web data. There are no pre-requisites, and although data will be used, prior experience with statistics or research design is not necessary.

Evaluation of Instruction and Training in Human-Performance Technology (Master's, online, 1x, 2021)

This course focuses on the evaluation of training and instruction through a systemic analysis of the organization sponsoring the training program. The course also provides the knowledge and skills for conducting an HPT-based evaluation of training systems.

Courses Taught, Michigan State University

Teaching & Learning with Technology (Undergraduate, online, 7x) 2017-2020

- * Course topics include design thinking, universal design for learning, media & information literacy, professional learning networks, computational thinking, and play-based learning.
- * Students develop plans for integrating technology in classroom.
- * The semester-long project is to design a professional online portfolio.

Learning Technology by Design (Master's, online, 3x) 2018-2020

- * Course topics include design thinking, the design process (empathize, define, ideate, prototype, test), designing for learners, iterative design. and collaboration in design.
- * Students discuss examples of good and bad designs from everyday life.

- * The semester-long project is to work through one cycle of the design process to address a problem of practice from the student's professional context.

Electronic Assessment for Teaching and Learning (Master's, online, 3x)

2018-2020

- * Course topics include foundational theories of assessment, formative assessment, feedback, and a critical examination of methods for assessment (e.g., portfolios, rubrics, surveys, tests, self-evaluations).
- * Students develop an assessment design checklist to use in their own professional practice.
- * The semester-long project is to plan a formative assessment design to implement in their own context.

Teaching Students Online (Master's, online, 1x)

2017

- * Course topics include foundations for online learning, course management systems, various models of online course design, instructor-student communication, assessment, universal design for learning, and online classroom management.
- * Students playfully explore Google Apps, course management systems, screencasting tools, and file management systems.
- * The semester-long project is to design a curriculum for an online course module consisting of 3-5 interconnected lessons, which may include training sessions or non-traditional courses.
